Celsys Provides Clip Studio Paint DEBUT (6-month Ver.) free to 10,000 educational institutions and 4.5M students in Texas

Celsys, Inc., the developers of popular illustration software Clip Studio Paint, is working with the non-profit Texas Computer Education Association (TCEA) to equip Texas schools and students with Clip Studio Paint DEBUT (6-month ver.) free of charge.

The TCEA works to support the use of technology in PreK-16 educational institutions. Established in 1980 and boasting 28,000 members, the TCEA has worked to secure funding for the introduction of technology to the classroom and also provides institutions with tools and curriculums.

“This partnership opens up a world of possibilities for Texas students. Having high-quality creative software like Clip Studio Paint Debut allows students to learn in engaging ways that help develop a number of skills at once, from learning the basics of technology use to the rudiments of art and design,” TCEA Executive Director Lori Gracey said of the collaboration.

Clip Studio Paint Debut is a painting software application with many useful features and a natural, smooth drawing feel suitable for all kinds of digital creation, whether you're a complete beginner or a skilled professional. Creative professionals everywhere already use and love the Clip Studio Paint PRO and EX retail versions of the software, and with this partnership young aspiring creators, too, can get a head start on learning the necessary skills to achieve their creative dreams.
